Biography

With utmost dedication and a hardworking attitude, Meredith strives for positive results and efficient resolution of litigation. She is an experienced litigator focused on the defense of general and professional liability, premises liability, product liability, medical malpractice and environmental tort claims. Meredith has successfully defended property owners and managers, hospitals, healthcare groups, doctors, construction managers, subcontractors, businesses and individuals in all aspects of litigation.

Meredith's experience includes several years focused exclusively on the defense of medical malpractice claims throughout Southern California. After joining Clausen Miller P.C., Meredith further expanded her practice to include the defense of general and professional, premises and personal injury claims throughout California. She also has experience in the defense of insurers against bad faith claims and in handling probate petitions for healthcare pursuant to California Probate Code §3200 et seq.

Meredith takes an aggressive, yet detail-oriented, approach to claim investigation, discovery and law and motion. She has significant experience in all phases of litigation. She has had particular success with law and motion, including repeat success in resolving cases at summary judgment in lieu of trial.

Clients' needs and interests are at the forefront of her approach to case strategy and goals. Meredith achieves this by always taking the time to get to know and understand her clients' individually as well as their businesses. An effective communicator, Meredith consistently keeps clients informed throughout litigation. She is always available to answer questions, provide recommendations and advise of next appropriate steps in litigation.

With a combination of experience and a thoughtful, analytical and efficient approach, your defense will be in good hands with Meredith.
