Biography

George is a partner in the firm's New York Office. George defends property owners, commercial clients, contractors and other entities in claims made by third parties. His focus is on defending catastrophic and complex injury cases.

George has extensive trial experience and has tried to conclusion and verdict multiple cases, in various venues, that involved both jury trials and bench trials. His experience allowed him to try high exposure cases and in the process defend clients with personal asset exposure. Recognizing that often a case can best be resolved out of the court room George has participated in numerous arbitrations and mediations that resulted in amicable resolutions for all parties involved.

Prior to joining Clausen Miller P.C., George was a senior associate at a small firm where he successfully represented employers in suits involving catastrophic injuries and handled cases involving multiple deaths, loss of limbs or otherwise life altering injuries. George was also an associate in one of New York's oldest firms where he represented and defended one of the region's largest utility companies in casualty related litigation.
